A YEAR IN PICTURES

1.) POWDERPUFF

Our 2007 Powder Puff football tournament and cheerleading tournament was a great success. Sororities duked it out on the football fields while their fraternity cheerleaders cheered them on. The proceeds benefitted YOUTHAIDS, an aids awareness organization.

2.) FAMILY WEEKEND

Kappa Sigma family weekend is a great opportunity for parents and siblings to experience Kappa Sigma. The events included a back yard barbecue and a gambling cruise for parents and their sons.

3.) FIVE STAR BALL

The Kappa Sigma Five Star Ball is our annual formal. Its commemorating shirt said "If it wasn't for the pictures I wouldn't remember a thing."

4.) TAILGATES

We kicked off football season with a bang. Every home game we held a tailgate at our house. There was great food and great times to go along with our winning season. Some tailgates even included slip and slides and huge inflatable slides.

5.) HAIRY BUFFALO

It's a Lambda Epsilon tradition we've kept alive for all of these years. Our annual Halloween costume party comes complete with a twenty-five foot buffalo's behind welcoming guests. It's a great tradition we hope to continue, going so far as making it this magazine's namesake.

6.) GOAL!!!

The sports life has been great here at Lambda Epsilon. Many of our teams have even gone to the playoffs. Our soccer team had a wonderful season going undefeated. Our football team had a winning record in the competitive gold league. The baseball team went 4-0 and made it to the semi-finals of the playoffs. We are all looking forward to a great softball season.

7.) RUSH SEASON

During the rush season we held many barbecues and invited sorority girls to show potential new members what being a Lambda Epsilon is all about. We had great food, loud music and huge inflatable slides. The barbecues proved effective as we look to place top in the country for the 5th consecutive time.

8.) HOMECOMING

We paired up with the lovely ladies of Alpha Delta Pi this past homecoming. Scott Kirkman, one of our own brothers, was crowned homecoming king. Homecoming this past year was more than we expected it to be.

Brothers,

The 2007-2008 year will prove to be a great one for the Lambda Epsilon chapter. With over a hundred hardworking and dedicated brothers on the current roster, the future of our organization is looking brighter than ever. We are made up of a wonderfully diverse group of individuals, allowing us to excel in all of our endeavors. In November, a new Executive Committee took the reigns and we are all ecstatic about our new positions. With determination, we will guide the chapter to take all of the right steps forward and to maintain our lead as the best fraternity at UCF. We have set out to make our chapter better than ever with more brotherhood events, community service projects, philanthropies, and scholarship incentives. Next in our sights are the Action Chapter Award and Founders Award of Chapter Excellence (FACE), awards Lambda Epsilon has worked hard for and deserves. Thirty-six years of Leadership, Scholarship, Fellowship and Service has earned us the reputation of one of UCF's premier fraternities. We look forward to upholding the name of our great Fraternity.

Gentleman, Welcome back to Lambda Epsilon..

THE MAN WHO STOLE THEIR HEARTS

A Kappa Sigma Chrimakkuh was Lambda Epsilon's service project that benefitted the Boys and Girls Club of Bithlo. It gave the children a chance to celebrate the holiday season a little earlier than usual. Brothers, along with the help of sorority girls, made this event one of the most memorable in Lambda Epsilon history.

There were about thirty children who attended the event. They were welcomed with holiday decorations such as lights in the chapter hall, 'floating' Christmas presents, and a 12 foot Christmas tree. There were also huge inflatable decorations waving the children in. The whole day was spent playing games such as freeze dance and tag. There were also arts and crafts for the children to participate in. Brothers helped the boys and girls decorate ornaments and assisted them in hanging the ornaments on the tree. In the back yard brothers were grilling hot dogs. There was a huge assortment of food donated to us by our generous sponsors.

The children were greeted by Santa Clause. They got the opportunity to sit on Santa's lap and let him know what they wanted for Christmas. In the end, the children received gifts and recited the boys and girls club creed for us.

As the sun began to set, it marked the end of the day. As we walked the kids to the school bus, we surprised them with a light show. Our house was lit from end to end, leaving the children with that last image for the ride home. To read more about this event please check out our website at www.kappasigmaucf.com.

March 2007 was a hectic month filled with many events leading up to a week of competitions for those who hoped to win Alpha Xi Delta's Xi-man. The events included barbecue attendance, popularity contests and house decorations. The scale of some house decorations show that fraternities meant serious competition. The lawn decoration we built stood over 12 feet tall, easily making it the largest on the lawn.

The most important part of the competition was donations. Diapers, baby food and toys were collected to benefit the Beta Center, a center for battered women, single mothers and troubled families. We raised over $2,500 in baby supplies. Over 12,000 diapers that we bought piled from the floor to the ceiling. Our donations put us in first place for the supply drive category ahead in the competition.

At the end of the week, all of the events led up to a talent show. This is where Tyler Cafferty stole the hearts of all of the girls as he played a song for them.

At the end of the night Tyler was crowned Xi-man, Alpha Xi Delta's sweetheart for the upcoming year. Tyler had become the third Kappa Sig to win this honor.

COUNCIL OF 101's

FESTIVAL OF THE TREES

Nov. 18th, ORLANDO- From November 10th to November 18th, the gentlemen of the Lambda Epsilon Chapter of the Kappa Sigma Fraternity worked alongside the ladies of the Pi Beta Phi Sorority at the annual Festival of the Trees, hosted by the The Council of 101. The benefit is held for nine days every year, and showcases holiday artwork and Christmas trees from various local and regional designers. Hundreds come to witness the spectacle and all the proceeds of donated trees and admission go directly to benefit the Museum and all of its endeavors.

The young men of the Lambda Epsilon Chapter worked the festival from before its opening day, to after its closing. They worked with Museum staff to organize, place, and package the trees, setting up the elaborate pieces at the onset of the festival and carefully wrapping them for shipping at its end. At its end, the grateful Museum officials provided the Chapter with food and beverages in thanks.

This kind of community service is important to the Chapter. It helps break the stereotype that we face as a fraternity.

Undoubtedly, the young men of Kappa Sigma are all dedicated to promoting a good name for the Chapter and showing the community the importance and values of Greek organizations, and will look forward to another chance to better the Chapter in the community's eyes.

For our efforts, a picture of brothers helping out was placed in the council's magazine. The magazine goes out to 30,000 private members. This kind of positive exposure is huge for the fraternity.

"This kind of positive exposure is huge for the fraternity."

GONE FISHIN'

We have partnered up with Wal Mart and FLW to help promote the FLW bass fishing tour, which kicks off in Kissimmee Florida. We have passed out flyers and posters to help raise awareness for the event.

In addition to helping promote the event we have assisted an alumni brother Brian Siddens from the University of Kentucky, whom is an FLW representative. In return he has given us huge amounts of positive press, by calling the Central Florida Future, the campus newspaper and by placing an ad about us in the competition newsletter.

The fishing tour benefits the Children's Miracle Network which helps terminally ill children. Some of our brothers have also gone down to the Children's Miracle Network to spend time with the children.

The weigh in is on March 2nd at lake Toho in Kissimmee, where many of us plan to attend.
